

PRESS RELEASE

We are proud to announce that we are investing into universal skills training for our employees.

We believe that businesses have a social responsibility to give back to the community. Gone is the age where corporations exist just to turn a profit for shareholders.

That's why we're partnering with Universal Owl to teach our employees healthy communication skills.

Henceforth, all new employees will be given online comprehensive training in assertiveness.

By training our employees to be more assertive, we hope to make them:

- Better at sticking up for themselves
- Better at dealing with conflict
- Stronger at setting boundaries
- Better equipped to deal with interpersonal challenges

These qualities have great value in a business setting, but they are also traits that are worth cultivating across an entire lifetime.

This means that from the time a new employee joins us, they will be learning skills that will positively impact the rest of their life.

We are so grateful to be a business that is making a positive difference in our community.
